

Office Spotlight

For the fourth quarter of 2025, we would like to recognize Paul May. Paul has been with JRayl since February 2015. When Paul started, he was a truck driver. He has worked his way up the ladder and is now the General Manager of our terminals in Texas, which include Sunnyvale and Houston. Some of his daily tasks include, but aren't limited to, taking care of the buildings and trucks, getting quotes from vendors and building/maintaining relationships with those vendors, safety of personnel, road tests, training, and using different strategies to keep the company profitable. He has been a valuable member of the JRayl team for over a decade now.

Paul was drawn to JRayl when he noticed advertisements for drivers to be home on weekends. He started driving trucks in 2004 and has experience with hauling various types of material. Throughout his time with JRayl, he has had increasing responsibilities added to his plate. Paul started taking roles with recruiting, training, and safety. He would go to truck driving schools to recruit new CDL graduates and help train them. He also has assisted with other training roles as well. During COVID, Paul went back to being a full-time driver and trained his son, Wyatt, who is a driver at our North Liberty terminal in Indiana. Wyatt has been with the company ever since. After COVID, Paul started working in the office as the general manager of our Texas terminals.

Some of Paul's favorite aspects of the job include being able to understand the drivers, building relations, learning new things, and solving problems. Paul is in a unique position to be able to help and understand drivers since he has his CDL-A. He not only helps mentor drivers himself, but he also sets up mentors for new employees so they can grow and succeed within JRayl. Some of his favorite highlights throughout his career include some of his new driving recruits winning Rookie of the Year and being an instructor for defensive driving. Paul remains positive at work when things get tough because he doesn't stress over things he can't control.

When Paul isn't at work, he enjoys doing leather work, playing the guitar, spending time with his family, and watching sports and is a TCU football fan. He has social media pages dedicated to his leather work, and it's called "Texan Leather Works." Paul is around his family most of the time, as he has family that also works at JRayl, and he has two grandsons who live with him.

We appreciate all the hard work and dedication that Paul has put into JRayl!
